WILL YOU MEET ME LITTLE CARRIE?

Meet me by the old family house little Carrie,
Loving words to your willing ears I'll tell,
I'll be waiting there for you pet, loving, kind and true;
Meet me little pretty brown eyes, Heavenly Angel dressed in blue.
Will you meet me precious little one at the old family place,
And let me gaze once more upon your beautiful smiling face?
Yes pretty Carrie, thee that has my heart to keep
Meet me when the little birds are gone to sleep!
Now darling Carrie, 'meet me pet and don't forget
That dear old place where you and I first met.
How well do I remember little Carrie dove,
When with you I first fell in love.
Amid all the pleasures of this world nothing seem as sweet,
So disappoint me not, but hasten to the spot,
When the little birds shall have gone to sleep:

Your dear beloved friend,
MOSES SHEPHERD.

BENNETT AND MACKAY.

THE TREMENDOUS SWELL THAT TWO EXTRAVAGANT AMERICANS ARE CUTTING IN THE SOUTH OF FRANCE.

The Vienna Salonblatt, the fashionable court journal of Austria, has a correspondent at Pau, in France. From his letter, dated April 10, we translate the following, of interest to the reader:

The winter races at Pau gather the first sporting circles of France to a long sojorn. An organization of the best standing manages the trotting races, which, as the society for the encouragement of the nobler qualities of the horse, has met with great success. Pau has in consequence become a central point of sporting interest.

The Prince of Bearn has, besides, one of the best hunting ranges in France, and the hunts, to which every stranger is welcome, are naturally a conspicuous attraction for Pau.

James Gordon Bennett, a very rich American, has settled himself in the former residence of Henry IV, and his extravagances, made light by the ownership of millions, have not in any degree damaged Pau.

For example, Bennett engaged the Vienna Capellmeister Strauss with his entire company, at an honorarium of 140,000 francs, to come to Pau, where he played a series of concerts at which all Pau were guests.

Mr. Mackay, the American nabob, who, with his soirees, costumes balls, etc., has busied all Paris, came with his wife to Pau. To honor them Mr. Bennett arranged a ball, engaging private express trains, which brought from Paris and other cities, also from the neighborhood of Pau, a brilliant company. The people called this ball "the diamond ball," for at no opportunity save this and here was it possible to behold such a wealth of diamonds. 'It was not mere dew-drops that sparkled and danced, it was a Niagara of brilliants and diamonds," said a member of the company, who pitied Mrs. Mackay because her treasures of jewelry almost weighted her down.

WRITE PLAINLY.

The rejection of the manuscript of an unfamiliar author is perhaps oftener on account of illegible handwriting than of lack of merit. There is no greater torture for an editor than to have to attempt to decipher a bad manuscript, and the sense, especially of a poem, is frequently entirely lost in the tangled maze of wretched penmanship. Sir Francis Jeffrey knew so well the difficulty of forming a correct judgment of an article by a reading in manuscript, that, when he sent in his first article after he had retired from the Edinburgh Review, he had an understanding with Napier, his successor, that it should not be read until it appeared in the proof. A few years ago the editor of the Saturday Review was accustomed to have every article which appeared as if it might be worth acceptance put into type before deciding upon it, for, as Charles Lamb says, there is no such raw and unsatisfactory reading as an article in manuscript. The same practice is followed by the editor of Harper's Magazine, it is said. Even authors of wide experience, like Thomas Moore and Macaulay, were seldom able to form a judgment of their own works until they had seen how they looked in print.—Boston Herald.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

[From our Special Correspondent.]

The Political Cauldron Red Hot.—The True Inwardness of the Conflict.—Blaine and Conkling.—Personal Hatreds of Twenty Years and More.—Personal Characteristics of the Two Republican Leaders.—Mr. Douglass and his New Office.—Ex-Senator Bruce, and the record he has left.—Father Barrotti, the Shepherd of Colored Catholics, his glorious life and impressive burial.—Mrs. Lockwood always on deck.

The political cauldron boils and bubbles, and is most likely to prove so full of dire disaster to the Republican party, as that which the witches brewed on the breath where Macbeth met and questioned them. Party ties are strong, but personal ambition stronger, and personal hatred stronger yet. It is these two latter factors in the present situation that gives bitterness and rancor to the quarrel among our leaders, und which I am sorry to say will prove as fierce and lasting a vendetta. Since the trouble began much has been said in regard to the personal relations existing between Senator Conkling and Judge Robertson. Senator Conkling it seems having stated in caucus that the nomination of Mr. Robertson was "personally offensive" to him. It is however well understood here that the true inwardness of the present fight, had its beginning years ago when Mr. Blaine and Mr. Conkling, then comparatively unknown men, were both members of the House of Representatives. It was upon that floor that they met for the first time, and it seems that then and there an antagonisim was developed, which has lasted to this good hour. Then it was that Mr. Conkling and Mr. Blaine first crossed swords, and they have been at carte and tierce ever since. Each has grown in mental stature and national fame since then. Both have been ambitious of the White House, and the one has ever been the marplot of the other. In character they are wholly unlike. Mr. Conkling is a clear, cold, intellectual entity, with vast self ascertion and a magnificent scorn for men. He has few personal friendships, and holds himself highly aloof from the masses. Hence his nickname of "Lord Roscoe." He is distinguished here in Washington from the herd of politicians by the facts that he keeps his word, and regards his promises. In the universal tergivasation which marks the politician of the period, (those who have favors to bestow) this quality is a feather in Mr. Conkling's cap, of which he may be pretty proud, since it is there by general acclaim.

Mr. Blaine is also a man of his word, and is known to look sharply after the interests of his friends, and their names indeed are legion. He has never had the intellectual training of his life long antagonist, still he is a man of great native mental strength, great force of character, and a personal magnetism, such as few men possess. His fittest place and where he shone to the greatest advantage was amidst the turbulence and tumult of the House of Representatives. Like the Petrel his wing is strongest and his flight more certain when breasting the storm. He seems to have realized the fact after he got into the still waters of the Senate, and took the earliest opportunity to leave it. As Secretary of State there is full play for his strong individuality. He has already shown his fondness for the storm by the tempest he has evoked and which is now raging. What the end is to be is beyond the reach of mortal man. The battle so long and so bitterly waged between these two giants of the Republican party, has now settled down to a death grapple. We can only hold our breath and wait the issue. Just at this moment the impression is that Mr. Blaine is on top. The almost unanimous confirmation of Judge Robertson would seem to indicate it. The scene of the conflict has been transferred to Albany, and superhuman efforts are being made to defeat the reelection of the resigning Senators. All other considerations aside, every impartial mind must regard Mr. Congling's retirement from public life as an irreparable loss to the nation.

The Hon. Fred. Douglass was confirmed by an almost unanimous vote, for the position of Recorder of Deeds, recently resigned by Gen. Geo. A. Sheridan. This is as it should be, and was a fitting tribute to the acknowledged worth and ability of this remarkable man.

As the telegraph will have informed you, ex-Senator Bruce was nominated and confirmed for Register of the Treasury, vice Mr. Scofield, who was appointed to the Court of Claims Bench, the position made vacant by the appointment of Judge Hunt to the Naval portfolio. Mr. Bruce's course while in the Senate won for him the respect and esteem of his friends as well as his political foes. Modest, self respecting, straightforward and industrious, with no straining after theatrical effects or a vain glorious ambition to fill the public eye, he fully deserves the golden opinions which he has won, and the honors which he so worthily wears. As an evidence of this, I clip the following paragraph from one of the most bitter democratic papers in the capital:

"No nomination was more pleasant to the South, and the people of the South, than that which last week named Hon. Blanche Bruce registrar of the Treasury. No Senator has a purer record than Bruce, and no man in public life is more esteemed. The position which President Garfield selected for him is admirably suited to him, as he is a man of excellent executive ability, and in all respects suited to and for the office. Mr. Bruce possesses, in addition to his integrity, the complete attributes of a gentleman."

Turn we now from the contemplation of lives passed in the never cessing strife of the political arena, to look upon one whose life though busy and earnest to the utmost extent, was peaceful and pure and greatly useful. And though so obscure was not the less glorious. I refer to Father Barrotti whose sudden death, from disease of the heart, has been widely chronicled.

But a few years ago Father Barrotti was sent to gather the few colored catholics of this district, and to minister to their spiritual wants. He found them few, scattered, disunited and struggling with extreme poverty. Their place of worship was scarcely more imposing than a clap-boarded school house in a country district.

With the earnestness of a great soul he bent himself to his work. Surmounting difficulties which would have appalled a heart less brave, and energies less restless and enduring, he in a comparatively short period, brought the affairs of the parish to the most flourishing condition. He had the consolation, denied to most men, of seeing the full fruition of his labor ere he died. He erected a magnificent church. The ever widening circle of his personal influence, his earnest and soulful administration of his holy office, increased an hundred fold his flock. The imposing and impressive service of the catholic church was given its full scope. The best musical talent of a musical race was utilized and brought to the aid of the service. The choir led by Mrs. Agnes Smallwood, whose superb soprano places her in the front rank of singers, was known far and wide, and attracted vast crowds of all grades of society to the sacred edifice.

The funeral cortage which followed the mortal remains of the dead priest to his last resting place, was a spontaneous tribute to the fidelity of his life work. Two hundred and fifty carriages were in line, filled not with idle spectators, but with sincere and sobbing mourners. A vast concourse also followed on foot. No man who ever ministered to the spiritual wants of a people was ever more greatly beloved. And his life though brief, was glorious.

Mrs. Lockwood, the female member of the District Bar, is scissors to the last. Although Mr. Osborne has been nominated and confirmed as Minister to Brazil, she this morning appeared at the White House armed with a huge petition which she metaphorically shied at the head of the Nation. It was no use to tell her that the position was filled. She fully comes up to Ben Butler's idea of the ways of a widow, "she knows what she wants, and she isn't afraid to ask for it."

WASHINGTON, D. C., May 22nd, 1881.

OBITUARY.

EDITOR LOUISIANIAN:

In sorrow beyond expression are we called upon to record the death of brother William McKay, who departed this life May 19th. He was born in Nashville, Tennessee, in the year 1836, and in the year 1860 or 1861 came to New Orleans; and was mustered out as a Union soldier, and having served his time, was honorably discharged in the year 1868. He embraced religion and became attached to the Mother Church then known as St. Paul Methodist Episcopal Church, but now known as Wesley's Chapel. From said time until six years ago when he joined Simpson's Chapel M. E. Church, he was a faithful member, and many souls were saved through his christian examples and godly conversations. Time after time could he be found ministering to the wants of the sick and cheering the droopy minds of those who, by misfortune, were borne down. To the christian church he was an able and efficient supporter, and to the unconverted he was a bright and shining light. His conduct at home and his disposition abroad was that of a pure christian. In this way he served as a power, wielding great influence for the advancement of the cause of Christ. Just about four weeks ago, before he was visited by the hands of affliction in Simpson's Chapel, when leading his class, seemingly conscious of his death, said; "this will be the last time that I shall ever meet you in a class gathering upon earth." And true enough! Not many days afterwards he became the fatal victim of a fever which terminated his career upon earth. All through his sickness he manifested a spirit most commendable; for when his acquaintances would visit him, though he lay upon his bed the victim of a raging fever and aching pains, he would say, "Jesus lives and I shall live also." Relying constantly upon the imperishable promise of Christ. At times he would become so elated over heavenly visions, that he would exclaims, "Glory! Glory!" All that medical attention could do was of no avail. On the Sunday before he died, he said to his devoted wife, "I have been to Jordan, and have been informed by the spirit that it is not he that comes to Jordan the most rash and enthusiastic that crosses over the most rapid, but he it is that marches the more steady and calm." He then told his wife that he had been the recipient of a Robe, and sang to her a verse or two of the hymn, "The Robe that Jesus gave me shines like the morning star." Then as a consolation to his family that knew and hence expected his death at every moment, to be deprived of him in this life, 'be submissive to the works of God,' and in the language of Job he said, "When my body shall pass through the door say, the Lord gave and the Lord hath taken away, blessed be the name of the Lord!" His dying request was that at his burial the two following hymns should be sung, "On Jordan stormy banks I stank," and also "A charge to keep I have."

Having left an immortal testimony, he turned towards his window and said, "Welcome death, for I have nothing more to do but to leave this world, this bed of affliction and soar away to a region where no pain, no disease, nor trouble comes." Then calmly reposing he slept in the arms of Jesus.

To his wife and child we extend our heartfelt sympathy in this their great bereavement. All we have to say is, be like him true to your church and sincere to your God and your reward will be sure.

J. GOULD,
Pastor in charge Simpson's Chapel M. E. Church.

THE UNDEVELOPED WEALTH OF THE TECHE AND ATCHAFALAYA COUNTRY.

There is a source of wealth remaining undeveloped in this immediate section, which added to the rice, the cane, the cotton interests, would make the Teche country more than ever, the richest part of Louisiana, the garden spot of the South. It is to be found in the immense forests of pine, cypress, live-oak and the other kinds of timber, which are used in the construction of fences, houses, boats, ships, and manufacture of barrels, wooden ware etc. The bayous and lakes furnish the way of transportation from forest to manufactory.

Nature has fully furnished her quota, and it only remains for man, money and enterprise, to open up a manufacture, and as a consequence thereof, a trade which would give employment to hundreds of individuals, would utilize the vast forests of timber, make that valuable which has now a nominal value and be the means of bringing the wealth and money of other sections to help swell the volume of ours. This is not a mere chimera of the brain. It is not the speculation of a visionary, who sees wealth hanging on the tree, or attainable without a due amount of labor, but it is a fact forced upon the mind by our knowledge that the manufactures and saw mills upon the Calcasieu and are what is making that section an emporium for the large and ever increasing demand for lumber, shingles, pickets, laths &c., made by the rapidly filling up with people of the vast prairies of Southwestern Louisiana, and of the great state of Texas; and which is building up the towns of the Calcasieu region, filling them with people, giving the people employment, and is a source of wealth and prosperity to that entire country. Besides the Calcasieu country, we could also point out the Sabine and Neches countries in Texas; there almost the sole source of wealth is the manufacturing of lumber, staves, shingles, pickets, doors, sash, blinds, etc., yet the revenues derived from these branches is so immense that those sections are reckoned as the most prosperous of that very prosperous state.

There is no good reason why we should not share this trade. We have equally as good, and as bountiful supply of all the classes of timber that are used. We are within easy, quick and cheap distance of the markets in Texas, and we would have the additional advantage of being within easy reach of New Orleans, and could divide the trade and demand of that city, with the Pearl River region and the saw mills on the rivers and bayous east of Lake Pontchartrain. Our natural water courses from the road, from the forests to the mills, and the several lakes be utilized for holding in security, free from accidents of sudden tides and currents, all the great reserves of timber, which the mills would have to keep to supply their ever continuing demands. The most favorable sites for the erection of mills can be found all along the banks of our river and bay. Nothing remains to done but for man to use his industry and capital in this direction, and receive in compensation ample profits.—Morgan City Free Press.

MEXICAN HOMES.

The Mexican ladies, writes a correspondent, are the most lovable, charming, amiable women in the world, and domestic life in this country is worthy the admiration of our people, and might be imitated by Americans. As there are no summer or winter resorts, families are not separated three or four months of each year. The mother does not urge her daughter to excel in the art of dress for the purpose of attracting attention or catching male butterflies. The fashionable hotel or boarding house—that pest, the curse of our land—is, happily, unknown here. Each young couple when they marry settle down in their own little house, however humble it may be, and their children are brought up in the pure sunlight of home. There are more marriages "for love" here than in France and Spain combined. Cupid holds firmer sway than Pluto. I admit that Mexican girls ought to have a more solid, liberal education than they generally receive. Not that it is at all necessary for them to puzzle their brains over Euclid and the exact sciences, but they ought to burn their embroidery frames, stop making wax flowers (an absurdity in this beautiful, fertile land); and study modern history, natural philosophy and mark the present course of events, and take some interest in the political status of the world. In the higher class the ladies are generally accomplished, are good lingnists and excellent musicians, but the great middle classes seem to have no higher ambition for their daughters than to have them taught to read, write and sew. The fragile forms, sallow complexions and the listlessness we observe among them are mainly due to their eternal stitching and want of exercise.—Progress.

MR. SECRETARY DORSEY.—Mr. J. J. Astor, Mr. Pierrepont Morgan, and the other wealthy Republicans who gave to ex-carpet-bag Senator Dorsey a magnificent dinner at Delmonico's in testimony of their appreciation of his services in carrying Indiana at the October election, will find instructive reading in the reports of the Star service robbery.—New York Sun.

SCALE OF PRICES.—It pays better for the American girl to be kissed by a postmaster than to be bitten by a monkey. The Baltimore Miss, who was kissed against her will, sued and recovered $5,000, while a New York girl whose nose was bitten by a monkey sued the monkey's owner and recovered but $3,500.—Boston Post.

Our Washington editorial correspondence shut out for want of space.

The Sunday Item published at Washington, D. C., is one of our best exchanges, it is ably edited and perfectly independent in its views. It reflects credit upon the race which it represents.

The editor and proprietor has again taken a trip to the North and West on a tour of general observation, during his absence we shall assume charge as editor and business manager. All communications in connection with the paper must be addressed to H. C. C. Atwood, 392 Bienville street, New Orleans, La., until further notice.

We are under special obligations to Hon. Wm. Preston Johnson, president of the Louisiana State University of Baton Rouge, for an invitation to the commencement Ball on Monday, July 4th, 1881.

ORDER OF EXERCISES.

Friday, July 1st, meeting of Board of Supervisors.

Saturday, July 2d., meeting of the Alumni. Drill. Addresses by Students and friends of the University.

Sunday, July 3d, annual Sermon by the Right Reverend John N. Gallegher, P. E., Bishop of Louisiana, at the Methodist Church.

Monday, July 4th, announcement of Distinctions and delivery of Certificates. Oration by Major W. F. Mullen, of New Orleans. University Ball.

HO! FOR THE JETTIES.

The excursion to be given on the 12th inst., by a committee of young men of which Messrs. Geo. Geddes and Charles E. Newton are managers should be largely patronized. Our people should appreciate the efforts put forth by their enterprising young men if they desire to succeed in common with others. This will be a delightful occasion to enjoy the balmy breezes of the Gulf to see nothing of the ride down the "Father of waters" and the magnificient construction of the wonderful and successful contrivances of Capt. Eads. Knowing these young men as we do, we are certain that no pains will be spared to make the trip a pleasant one and contribute to the happiness of all who will patronize this worthy enterprise. Come one, come all, and enjoy a trip to the Jetties.

SHOW YOUR HAND.

This is the weekly cry of some of our exchanges, and one of the other race seem to belittle the position taken by others, consigning them to Federal ostracism by December next should they fail to show their hands. Lest the position of the LOUISIANIAN be misunderstood, we simply say we have already shown our hands. The LOUISIANIAN cannot be influenced by mercenary or individual interests. We have a race and a party to defend. Those who have read our columns carefully cannot be mistaken in our course. Our comments upon Gen. Garfield's inaugural was sufficiently plain and well defined. When a colored man failed to get in the Cabinet, and the human cry went forth that Gen. Garfield had snubed the negro, we protested and said that a Cabinet position was not the only recognition that could be given to colored men. Some of our contemporaries said we had taken a "back track." Since which the President has appointed Senator Bruce and Hon. Fred. Douglass to two of the most prominent positions ever held by colored men. Should the President continue in thus recognizing our race he will find not only the LOUISIANIAN but the honest masses of the South rallying to his support. And as we said before, "we will not believe that President Garfield will do otherwise until forced to do so by stubborn facts." But we do not construe that our friendship for the administration consist in abusing other republicans, nor shall we attempt to run the politics of the Empire State. We shall confine our mission to the South and other localities where our race is ostracised even by their own party. The Conkling controversy has been relegated back to his State. The republicans of New York must sit in judgment upon the case, and their verdict must be final, and to it every republican must submit. But we say in unmistakable language that whatever be the outcome we shall not have one unkind word to say against Senator Conkling, whose eminent services have done so much for the party.

BRUTALITY vs. LAW.

The brutal outrages perpetrated upon the unfortunate Zenon J. Decuir is another evidence of the incompetent police force of our city. All of the facts in the case shows what little regard these pretended conservators of the peace have for the lives of poor inoffensive colored individuals, who are shot down like dogs without any seeming redress whatever. The bands of hoodlums which make night hidious with their revelries in nearly all of our public squares seem to be a terror for these brave officers of the law. They are allowed to indulge freely in their lawlessness, and often defy these so-called peace officers, yet we never hear of them using their revolvers, which they are so ready to use upon helpless and law abiding colored men. The actions of officer Commons should be severely condemned, and he should suffer the full penalty of the law for the cold blooded murder of this man as an example to others who might be inclined to do a like act. We trust that the officers of the law will not discriminate in this mater, but that even handed justice be meeted out in this case. We will await the action of the authorities before cammenting further upon the subject, hoping that the lives, and privileges of our people will not be so frequently outraged as in the past, which is becoming too appearant for us to submit to, without a protest.

One of the Thirty has forwarded us a communication endorsing our views in connection with the ex-Sergeant. He says, "your allusions were correct. There was one man bitterly opposed to the colored folks, &c. The Republican party wants to be built up of good bed rock and not of washing sand stone." There are still some patriots left.

The address delivered by Hon. A. C. Ruston on decoration day at Baton Rouge will appear in our next issue.

CONSTANTINE COMMANDRY No. 13.

This ancient and noble fraternity with its ensigna En Hoc Signos Vinces, celebrated its anniversary on Thursday last, under the command of Eminent Commander Sir James Lewis, assisted by Sir J. D. Newman, Generalissimo, and Chas. D. Newton, Captain General. The Knights paraded our principal thoroughfares. They were beautifully regaliared, and presented an appearance equal to that of any other organization which ever paraded our streets. The services at the St. James Chapel A. M. E. Church were dignified and sublime. The responses of the Sir Knights to the imposing Episcopal ritual used on the occasion seatered a holy influence throughout the audience. From the church, the Commandry repaired to the Oakland Park, where a grand parade was conducted by Capt. General Sir Chas. J. Newton.

The evolutions, and the entire drill was splendid, which reflected great credit upon the Sir Knights. Right Eminent Grand Commander Sir Alex. Morris, of Louisville Kentucky, for the jurisdiction of Ohio was in line, and seemeed well pleased with the commandery. He is on a tour of inspection and will justly render a good report of Constantine Commandery. He is a courteous gentlemen, accompanied by his esteemed lady who received the especial attention of the Sir Knights. Prominent among the Sir Knights were past officers Sir J. H. Burch, Sir Wm. G. Brown, Sir C. F. Ladd and Sir C. C. Antoine. After the drill, the Sir Knights mingled freely with their friends in the amusements until a very late hour. The Picnic in connection with the occasion was a grand affair largely attended, and a financial success. The officers of this Commandry deserve great credit for their meritorious efforts in building up, and preserving this ancient institution.

COMMENCEMENT EXERCISES OF STRAIGHT UNIVERSITY.

The commencement exercises of this University began last Sunday night before a very large audience at the Central Cong. Church. Professor Alexander, the President of the College, delivered an excellent sermon upon the necessity of an educated ministry. Rev. A E. P. Albert graduated from the Theological department with the degree of B. D. His oration was a very creditable one. At the conclusion of the exercises professor Alexander conferred the diploma of the University upon the graduate.

On the following Wednesday the exercises were continued at the University building. The examination of the different classes showed marked progress, many of the students being advanced to higher grades of studies. The exercises on Wednesday night eclipsed anything ever witnessed before in this city. The large and spacious edifice was densely crowded. Every pew, the galleries, the vestibule and the aisles were literally packed. Never was there such an out pouring of the masses as this, or any other occasion before which plainly shows the increasing interest in behalf of education among our people.

The order of the exercises were as follows:

1—ANTHEM.....Rejoice.
2—PRAYER.....
3—PIANO DUET.....Chasse Infernal, Miss E. Kuhl and Miss A. Boissiere.
4—ORATION....The Relations of Labor and Capital.
David Robert Jackson, New Orleans.
5—ORATION....The Acquisition of Property our Privilege and our Duty.
Oscar Landry, Donaldsonville, La.
6—VOCAL DUET.....Beautiful Sea.
Miss A. Kennedy and Miss M. Landry.
7—ORATION.....The Ideal Home,
Isaiah Milligan Terrell, Anderson, Texas.
8—PIANO SOLO.....Alice,
Miss Ella W. Dunklee.
9—ORATION....The Criterion of Judgment which every Race must Abide, Aristides E. P. Albert, New Orleans.
10—MALE QUARTTE..Sleep on the Pillow,
11—ORATION....The Claim of the State upon the Citizen.
Augustus Milton Addison, Port Gibson, Miss.
12—PIANO SOLO.....In the Evening,
Miss M. Landry.
13—CONFERRING DIPLOMAS. By the President,
14—CHORUS.....A Hume by the Sea.

DOXOLOGY.

Every oration was finely prepared and beautifully delivered. Each graduate displayed great research and marked ability. Rev. A. E. P. Albert excelled in eloquence and oratory, and as each graduate finished their orations they were loaded down with choice bouquets by their delighted friends.

The singing under the leadership of Professor McPhernon Principal of the school was excellent. The sweet voice of Miss Kennedy producing a charming effect upon the audience. After the Piano Solo by Miss Landry, which was finely executed and loudly applauded by the audience, professor Alexander preparatory to conferring the diplomas said, "Owing to the crowded audience which have so patiently and interestingly listened to the exercises, and the intense heat of this summer night, I shall detain you but for a few words of friendship and farewell. You have reached the separating line of prepartory students and that of real active life. You must by your education make your pathway through this life. Let your actions be modest, and your true worth shine forth by meritorious labour rather than by any agency to herald forth your own praise. You need ask no sympathy. The time has gone by, when your race need the pity of others to succeed. All you desire is an equal chance in the race of life. If you are to be merchants, or doctors, or lawyers, or captains, or members of any other profession, you desire to be respected as such, which will be conceeded by all good men. All you need ask of any man is to get out of your pathway and allow you to march successfully on." Professor Alexander continued at length in a strain which drew the attention and applause of the entire audience, and awarded the diplomas as follows; to Messrs. Jackson, Landry, Terrell, Albert and Addison. In conclusion professor Alexander said, "I will take this occasion to announce to the audience that we are making great preparations for the reception of students during the coming year. The new dormitory which is nearly finished, will be completed and furnished, ready to receive students by the first of October. There will be ample accommodation to board one hundred young ladies and the like number of oung men, whilst the institution will afford accommodations for five hundred students."

The success and reputation of this university is now established, this being its eleventh anniversary. It is a beacon light and a benefactor to this community. Too much cannot be said in behalf of professor Alexander and his co-workers, for the zeal and interest taken in behalf of our people. The immense throng gathered at Central Church on Wednesday night speak their gratitude in language louder than we can proclaim. From this institution hundreds have already gone forth, and hundreds are now following, who will lead in the van of the mighty civilization which is sweeping throughout the country, and placing our people upon the higher level of civilization in common with all men. We wish the graduates and the University God speed in their mission of peace. While the LOUISIANIAN will ever have a kind word for such benefactors as Professors Alexander, McPhernon and their co-workers in behalf of our race.

WASHINGTON CORRESPONDENCE.

EDITOR LOUISIANIAN:

The absorbing topic now under discussion by all classes is the estrangement between the Administration and the New York great Senator. The action of the President in withdrawing all the nominations with the exception of Judge Robertson, has been termed weak, ill tempered and petulent, and meant as a rebuke to the Republican caucus for holding over the contested nomination of Robertson for further consideration. If President Garfield had recalled all the nominations and made new appointments without regard to political likings or dislikings, or had he allowed the present incumbents to hold over until next December, everything might have been arranged amicably.

The Vice-President and Senator Platt called on the President with authority to speak for Senator Conkling, and earnestly urged the withdrawal of all the nominations in order to avert the impending contest. They received no satisfaction. The same day a message was sent to the Capitol withdrawing all the nominations but Robertson. The surprise of the Senators can be better imagined than described, they having received no notice of the course the President intended to take. It has been hinted that the vacancies were made so that in case Robertson was defeated there would be other important offices to distribute among those who made his the President's "nomination at Chicago possible."

The President had Conkling at a singular disadvantage, for even had it been possible for the latter to have defeated every nomination sent in by the former, still he could not compel him to send in the name of any man he did not wish to appoint. So it can be seen that should Mr. Conkling be unable to make the usual distribution of fat offices among his following, his prestige would soon be gone. Conkling knew this and resigned, preferring to be returned with his action endorsed by the great State which he so ably represents. Then the Administration will have to face the opposition of the party in New York to its course. The letter of Senators Conkling and Platt tendering their resignations is admitted by all to be a strong presentation of the case. Conkling has never yet made a political mistake and is not likely to make one in a case of this kind, and his resignation has removed the indignity placed upon him from his shoulders to the broad back of the Empire State trusting to it to resent the insult. He represents a large constituency and places his case in their hands for a verdict, and there is but little doubt that they will decide in his favor. The following letter from Gen. Grant is a characteristic one:

"My Dear Senator: I see by the latest dispatches received here from the Capital of our country that the dead-lock in organizing the Senate is not yet broken, and that nothing has been done by the President to allay the bitterness which must be engendered by his most recent appointments. When the first batch of nominations for New York was sent in I was delighted. I believed then the President had determined to recognize the Republican party, and not a faction. But his nominations of the next day convinced me that the first act was but a part of a deep-laid scheme by somebody to punish prominent leaders for being openly friendly to me. I cannot believe that General Garfield is the author of this policy. I give him credit for being too big a man to descend to such means for the punishment of men who gave him a hearty support in his election, and who are disposed to give him the same support now, for the offense of having had a former preference for some one else for the office which he now holds. But Garfield is President and is responsible for all the acts of the administration. Conkling and Platt are the chosen Senators from the great State of New York, and that, too, against all the opposition of an administration created by the same party that elected them. This should give them all the stronger claim to be consulted in the matter of appointments in their State. When it comes to filling the most influential office in their State without consulting these Senators it is a great slight. When he selects the most offensive man to be found it becomes an insult, and ought to be resented to the bitter end. I sincerely hope the President will see this and correct his mistake himself, and restore harmony to the party. He owes this to himself and to those without whom he could not have been elected. Nobody believes that he could have carried the State of New York without the active support of her present Senators. Their passive support would not have answered. Without the State of New York Gen. Garfield would not now be President. His rewarding Robertson is not only offensive to the New York Senators, but it is offensive to New York Republicans.

"The change of Badeau and Cramer, the two appointments in which I felt a strong personal interest, was very distasteful to me; the first, because of our personal relations and my wish that he should be kept where his office would support him until he finishes some work he is engaged upon, and which he could do without interfering with his public duties. The second, because it was at the expense of removing the son of my old Secretary of State, who probably never had his superior—certainly never for moral worth—in the Department. It is true Fish resigned. But he did this from a sense of honor, supposing it to be the duty of representatives abroad to give a new administration the opportunity of saying whether they were wanted or not. Very truly yours,

"U. S. GRANT,

"Hon. J. P. JONES, United States Senator, Washington, D. C."

It is a strong protest against the course of the Administration. He thinks such a result justifies the strongest resentment. It is an undeniable fact, as stated by General Grant, that without the active support of Conkling Gen. Garfield could not have carried New York. And surely the President cannot afford to insult the man who stood by him when the political horizon was overcast and Republican success seemed doubtful.

The "colored brother" has at last been recognized by the appointment of Fred. Douglass as Recorder of Deeds, and ex-Senator Bruce as Register of the Treasury. The first appointment was conceded some time ago, but the nomination of Seantor Bruce was quite an agreeable surprise to his many friends here, as it will be to those all over the country, who recognize the worth, ability, and strict integrity of the colored Senator. No representative colored man could have been chosen who is more eminently fitted for the position, and leading men of both parties are a unit in the belief that the President made an excellent selection. Mr. Bruce has about two hundred and fifty clerks under him, and for the first time in the history of the Republic a colored man's name will appear on the bonds and paper money of the country. This is a good beginning, and all we ask is that the President will continue on with his good work until the colored people will have under his administration what they have never yet had, a just and equal representation.

NASBY.

WASHINGTON, D. C., May 23d, 1881.

IN MEMORIUM.

"We know thou art gone to the home of thy rest,
Then why should our hearts be so sad,
We know thou art gone where the weary are blest;
And the mourners look up and are glad."

TO THE MEMORY OF W. R. SAFFOLD.

One of the saddest events in life is the loss of some loved one, or friend. But no ling can cause more sorrow than to see one cut down in the bloom of youth, surrounded by a fond and loving family and a little child that can scarcely lisp that sweet word, Papa. Such was the case of our departed friend Saffold. He was born at Sydney, Ohio, on the 30th day of May, 1859, and departed this life on the 29th day of May, 1881, just within one day of 22 years of age. He came to Louisiana about 8 years ago to reside with his uncle Gov. Pinchback. He was sent by him to West Newton, Mass., where he received a liberal business education, and returned to Louisiana to take upon himself the responsibilities of life. His courteous and manly bearing gained for him many warm friends, and whilst he was not a professed christian, he was free from those contemenating influences which often degrade our youth. No profane or indecent language was ever indulged in by this examplary young man. He soon developed great energy and business ability, with a great liking for newspaper enterprise. He started a paper called the "People's Journal," which seemed destined to be successful, but fearing the conflict which might ensue between that journal and the LOUISIANIAN, after its first year's publication he retired the paper. He was ever a zealous and true friend to the LOUISIANIAN, and formed a part of its local staff until his pressing duties and ill health caused him to retire from the paper. In 1878 he contracted the yellow fever and came nigh falling a victim to that dreadful and eventful epidemic. From thence death seemed to have claimed him for his own, he never having recovered his original health and vigor. He became united to a very estimable and talented young lady by the name of Miss Lucretia Simms. This happy and devoted couple seemed to have united a life of sunshine, beautified the bright smiles of a little baby girl not yet two years old.

They never realized what real sorrow was, until one week before his untimely death, when he was forced to abandon his duties in the Postoffice, which he had filled with credit to himself and his friends, retired to his home never more to leave it again in the flesh. He was confined to his bed for one brief week, during which time he spent in meditation and prayer. Just before his death he desired to see a minister of Christ and to receive the holy sacrament of baptism. He was visited by the Rev. A. M. Green a few hours before his death and evinced a deep and lively interest in regard to his soul; after receiving the holy sacrament alluded to, he impressed the Elder with the fact that he was redeemed by the blood of Christ, and the Elder triumphantly believes to-day that our friend's soul has been added to the saints of God. A few short hours there after he breathed his life sweetly away.

He was tenderly nursed, by a dutiful and loving wife, together with a fond grand-mother. A large number of kind friends watched over his remains, and bore them on his 22nd birthday to their last resting place until the resurrection morn. He leaves behind a sorrowing wife and child, a fond grand mother, a kind uncle, with a host of friends to mourn his untimely end. Who will not shed a tear for this dear young man who was thus hurried by a rapid consumption to try the realities of another world. His good deeds will ever be remembered, whilst his triumphant death will be a source of consolation to his sorrowing friends, who can fondly realize that in the final day one and all may be trimphant "sweeping through the gates in the Sweet Bye and Bye."

The Louisianian.

SATURDAY, JUNE 4, 1881.

Senators Landry, Allain, and ex-Senator Thos. A. Cage, is in the city.

Mrs. A. J. Kenner, left here on Wednesday last for Nashville Tennessee, where they will remain for the Summer.

Mr. George Gracien, who was arrested on Sunday last at Camp Chalmette, charged with assaulting officer Donovan, was honorably acquited.

The JEUNES AMIS treated their many patrons to a fine and select picnic at the Magnolia Garden, on Monday May 30. The picnic was in keeping with other entertainments given by these popular young men.

Mr. A. J. Morris and wife, the Rt. eminent grand Commander of Knight Templars for Ohio, and its jurisdiction, left here on Thursday for Nashville Tennessee, where they will remain but a short time, after which they will leave for their home in Kentucky.

The usual annual ceremonies were observed on Sunday last in the decoration of the grave of the Federal dead who are lying at rest in the National Cemetary at Camp Chalmette. The ceremonies of the occasion were grand and impressive. The graves were profusely decorated with choice evergreens and flowers which indicated that the services rendered by the fallen heros are not forgotten by a hospitable and generous people.

CARRIED AND LAID IN THE SILENT—Home of the dead W. R. Saffold Esq., the nephew of Gov. Pinchback died at his late residence on Sunday last. Mr. Saffold was one of our most energetic and enterprising young men, intelligent, modest, courtious, cultivated and quiet, when but 17 years of age he was editor of a beautiful and well edited little paper called "The Boy's Friend," and subsequently changed to "The Weekly Gazette." This paper under the able management of Mr Saffold, was eagerly looked for at the end of every week. The funeral services over the remains took place at his residence on Monday, at 4 o'clock. A large gathering of warm personal friends assembled to take their last look and pay the usual tribute of respect to him whose loss they deeply lamented. After the funeral reached the cemetary a fervent and solemn prayer was offered by Rev. Mr Green, the casket was then litterally covered over with choice evergreens, and floral offerings. To the bewaved wife, and the rest of his family, we extend our sad and sincere commiseration.

Ascension day was commemorated here by Constantine Commandery No. 13, Knight Templars, by the usual annual solemn and impressive services at St. James Sanctuary, and a grand drill and street parade during the day. The procession was simply grand, surpassing in beauty and style any of their former efforts. The marching, evolution, and sword manual, were gone through with more than ordinary accuracy and skill. After parading our principal thoroughfares they embarked on board of the cars for Oakland Riding Park, where they had an inspection and review by Right Eminent Grand Commander A. J. Morris. The picnic was fine and select, surpassing anything of the kind this season. Sir Charles E. Newton, who had charge of order on the occasion of the parade, has certainly proven himself to be the equal if not the superior of any in the city in the art of drilling and giving command. During the evening we found ourselves several times in the company of Mr. Morris. We can truly say a more convivial and courteous gentl man never wore the uniform of a Knight Templar. The annual festivities given by the Knights are always attractive, but that of Thursday last was made more so by the presence of Mr. and Mrs. Morris.

OUT OF OBSCUTITY INTO THE LIGHT—The Central Church on Wednesday evening might have been called a flower garden, for it was litterally packed with choice flowers, and beautiful faces. The audience who greeted the graduates on the occasion of their debut into the graduating world, was certainly the largest, finest, and most select that ever graced the sacred precinct of that holy sanctuary. The occasion was eagerly looked for as it was generally reported that the graduating class had done themselves great credit in their final exmaminations. The subjects selected for the occasion were excellent in the extreme exhibiting considerable research close thought, and cultured intellect. The Straight University has done more for the moral, religious, and intellectual training of our people than any other private or public institution in the State. From 8 to 9 graduates are annually turned out from this institution intelligently versed in the various branches of education. After the graduating exercises were completed, Prof. W. S. Alexander delivered an able and forcible validictory address commencing with true and eloquence reasoning and ending with ripe logical conclusions. The musical features of the occasion were also exceedingly beautiful, and interesing evincing fine vocal and instrumental talent. Profs. W. S. Alexander and J. M. McPharron have by their many virtures fine literary attainments and ripe scholarship won the admiration and respect of all clases of our people. The following are graduates: D. R. Jackson, Oscar Landry, J. M. Terrell, A. E. P. Albert. A. M. Addison.

LOUISIANA STATE LOTTERY.

Take Notice.

1. That the order of the Postmaster General against the delivery of its mails is rescinded.

2. That this is the only Lottery not declared fraudulent by the Government.

3. That this is the only Lottery ever voted on and endorsed by the people of their state.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 27.—The following is Postmaster General Key's letter to the postmasters at New Orleans and New York:

On the 13th day of November, 1879, I issued an order addressed to you forbidding payment of any postal money order to M. A. Dauphin, or M. A. Duphin, secretary, or M. A. Dauphin, P. O. Box 692 and 392 Broadway, New York, and the return of all registered letters addressed to them to the postmasters at whose offices they were mailed.

This party having brought suit against me to enjoin the performance of this order, and having appealed the same to the Supreme Court of the United States, and having this day presented a certificate of the Governor and State officers of the State of Louisiana, that he has complied with all the legal requirements of that State, and other evidence, and not being satisfied from the evidence submitted to me that M. A. Dauphin is engaged in conducting a scheme or device for obtaining money through the mails by means of false and fraudulent pretenses, representations and promises, I hereby authorize and direct the suspension of said order so far as relates to said Dauphin until the case shall have been heard and determined by the Supreme Court of the United States.

THE WEEKLY

LOUISIANIAN.

ADVOCATING THE RIGHTS OF MEN,

And representing, especially, the colored citizen, the LOUISIANIAN will maintain, as a fundamental principle, the perfect equality of all citizens, without regard to race or color.

OUR AIM

Shall be to foster kindly relations between the races, and to establish a more manly respect for each other as the very first essential to the future peace and prosperity of our State and the South.

We enter upon our tenth year pledged to the advocacy of the

that has governed the LOUISIANIAN from the beginning.

HARMONY AND MODERATION

among all classes and between all interests; kindness and forbearance fostered where malignity and resentment reigned, and a common service of ALL the peoplewill elevate our loved State to an enviable and rightful position among her sisters in the development of her boundless resources and matchless advantages.

AS AN ADVERTISING MEDIUM,

The LOUISIANIAN offers rare advantages to the merchant and business man. Our large and weekly increasing circulation within the State, and throughout the country, renders the service of our columns particularly desirable.

EDUCATION.

A special feature of our paper will be its educational column, relating to matters affecting our common school system, the education of our youth, and the enlightenment of the masses.

FINAL.

With this statement of our purpose and laudable endeavor, we hope we shal receive, as we shall always strive to merit, commendation and support. Identified with every interest of our State, proud of its history and its advantages, we shalll untiringly work in its behalf; counting no exertion too great or services too onerous to command and insure success.

OFFICE—644 CAMP STREET

NEW ORLEANS, LOUISIANA

CLEANSING AND DISINFECTION OF PRIVIES.

The following circular has been issued by the Board of Health:

SANITARY MEASURES TO BE ENFORCED BY THE SANITARY INSPECTORS OF THE CITY OF NEW ORLEANS.

OFFICE OF THE BOARD OF HEALTH, of the State of Louisiana, State-House, April 22, 1880.

1. House-to-house inspectors must be pressed as rapidly as possible.
2. Order the abatement of all nuisances.
3. Order the emptying and disinfection of all foul privies.
4. Order the periodic disinfection at intervals of not less than seven days of all privies and water closets.
5. Order the cleansing and disinfection of all foul alleys and yards.
6. Enforce the ordinance which compels all citizens to place all garbage and refuse matters of dwellings, hotels, stores, markets, manufactories and stables in boxes or barrels, or other suitable receptacles, for removal by the garbage carts.

DISINFECTION.

The Board of Health of the State of Louisiana deem it important that the people should be instructed with regard to the value and importance of disinfection, for the removal of foul gases and emanation, and for the destruction of the poisons of infectious and contagious diseases.

To accomplish the greatest good for the preservaton of the health of the people, disinfection should be practiced at regular intervals throughout the entire year; but more fully, and frequently in the city of New Orleans, during the months of May, June, July, August, September and October.

By disinfection and household sanitation, the people should seek to avert or prevent pestilence and should not delay the practice of these important measures, until disease is actually developed, by the neglect and violation of sanitary laws. Each citizen, therefore, by obeying rigidly sanitary laws becomes the guardian of the health of his household.

New Orleans is whithout sewers, and the privies necessarily contain at all times an immense amount of fecal matter. Even under the most energetic system of removal of the contents of the privies, it is essential that disinfection be used in this hot, moist climate, at regular intervals. It should be borne in mind, however, that disinfection cannot be substituted for want of cleanliness or of ventilation, but should be used for the prevention of those putrefactive processes which result in the generation of compounds and agents deleterious to man.

In the selection of disinfectants reliable agents should be secured, which can be procured in a state of purity, and at so small a cost that they can be used in adequate quantities and at stated intervals.

DISINFECTION OF PRIVIES AND WATER CLOSETS.

For disinfection of privies, cess-pools water closets and vaults, use the following:

Sulphate of iron (green vitriol or copperas) 3 pounds; Calvert's carbolic acid No. 5, 1 pint; water, 4 gallons; dissolve the green virtriol in hot water, and when cool add the carbolic acid.

Add one gallon of this mixture to the privy or water closet to be disinfected, and thereafter one quart every fifth day, or oftener, if any foul smell is devolved from the privy.

Lime should not be used in the disinfection of privies, as it decomposes the salt of ammonia.

This objection, however, does not apply to the sulphate of lime (plaster of Paris), which may be used with advantage in combination whith carbolic acid and copperas.

The walls of privies and all unpainted wood work should be whitewashed.

FOUL DRAINS, DAMP FOUL YARDS, STABLES, COW-HOUSES, MARKETS AND SLAUGHTER HOUSES.

Fresh slaked lime, chloride of lime, plaster of Paris and sulphate of iron should be sprinkled over damp and foul places, drains and yards. For disinfection of such places a simple solution of sulphate of iron or copperas, in proportion of one and a half pounds to the gallon, may also be used. The copperas solution may be prepared in large quantities for markets, stables and slaughter houses, foul yards, drains and gutters, by hanging a basket containing about seventy pounds of copperas in a barrel of water.

The LOUISIANIAN offers rare advantages to the merchant and business man. Our large and weekly increasing circulation within the State, and throughout the country, renders the service of our columns particularly desirable.

EDUCATION.

A special feature of our paper will be its educational column, relating to matters affecting our common school system, the education of our youth, and the enlightenment of the masses.

FINAL.

With this statement of our purpose and laudable endeavor, we hope we shal receive, as we shall always strive to merit, commendation and support. Identified with every interest of our State, proud of its history and its advantages, we shall untiringly work in its behalf; counting no exertion too great or services too onerous to command and insure success.

OFFICE—644 CAMP STREET

NEW ORLEANS, LOUISIANA

CLEANSING AND DISINFECTION OF PREMISES.

The following circular has been issued by the Board of Health:

SANITARY MEASURES TO BE ENFORCED BY THE SANITARY INSPECTORS OF THE CITY OF NEW ORLEANS.

OFFICE OF THE BOARD OF HEALTH,
of the State of Louisiana,
State-House, April 22, 1880.

1. House-to-house inspectors must be pressed as rapidly as possible.
2. Order the abatement of all nuisances.
3. Order the emptying and disinfection of all foul privies.
4. Order the periodic disinfection at intervals of not less than seven days of all privies and water closets.
5. Order the cleansing and disinfection of all foul alleys and yards.
6. Enforce the ordinance which compels all citizens to place all garbage and refuse matters of dwellings, hotels, stores, markets, manufactories and stables in boxes or barrels, or other suitable recepatcles, for removal by the garbage carts.

DISINFECTION.

The Board of Health of the State of Louisiana deem it important that the people should be instructed with regard to the value and importance of disinfection, for the removal of foul gasses and emanation, and for the destruction of the poisons of infectious and contagious diseases.

To accomplish the greatest good for the preservaton of the health of the people, disinfection should be practiced at regular intervals throughout the entire year; but more fully, and frequently in the city of New Orleans, during the months of May, June, July, August, September and October.

By disinfection and household sanitation, the people should seek to avert or prevent pestilence and should not delay the practice of these important measures, until disease is actually developed, by the neglect and violation of sanitary laws. Each citizen, therefore, by obeying rigidly sanitary laws becomes the guardian of the health of his household.

New Orleans is whithout sewers, and the privies necessarily contain at all times an immense amount of fecal matter. Even under the most energetic system of removal of the contents of the privies, it is essential that disinfection be used in this hot, moist climate, at regular intervals. It should be borne in mind, however, that disinfection cannot be substituted for want of cleanliness or of ventilation, but should be used for the prevention of those putrefactive processes which result in the generation of compounds and agents deleterious to man.

In the selection of disinfectants reliabl agents should be secured, which can be procured in a state of purity, and at so small a cost that they can be used in adequate qantities and at stated intervals.

DISINFECTION OF PRIVIES AND WATER CLOSETS.

For disinfection of privies, cess-pools water closets and vaults, use the following:

Sulphate of iron (green vitriol or copperas) 3 pounds; Calvert's carbolic acid No. 5, 1 pint; water, 4 gallons; dissolve the green vitriol in hot water, and when cool add the carbolic acid.

Add one gallon of this mixture to the privy or water closet to be disinfected, and thereafter one quart every fifth day, or oftener, if any foul smell is devolved from the privy.

Lime should not be used in the disinfection of privies, as it decomposes the salt of ammonia.

This objection, however, does not apply to the sulphate of lime (plaster of Paris), which may be used with advantage in combination whith carbolic acid and copperas.

The walls of privies and all unpainted wood work should be whitewashed.

FOUL DRAINS, DAMP FOUL YARDS, STABLES, COW-HOUSES, MARKETS AND SLAUGHTER HOUSES.

Fresh slaked lime, chloride of lime, plaster of Paris and sulphate of iron should be sprinkled over damp and foul places, drains and yards. For disinfection of such places a simple solution of sulphate of iron or copperas, in proportion of one and a half pounds to the gallon, may also be used. The copperas solution may be prepared in large quantities for markets, stables and slaughter houses, foul yards, drains and gutters, by hanging a basket containing about seventy pounds of copperas in a barrel of water.
